“Past Prime”

Faded Glory and Fond Farewells

There is something enchanting about late season garden-summer beds of daisies, with two or three persistent petals hanging onto the stem, or great bushes of drying hydrangeas hanging on the line. Their waning is quite moving, a natural sort of still life. The beauty lies in it's imperfection.

Nature compensates for it's collapse of spring color with a bountiful harvest of the orchard or fruit bearing vine. Sophisticated innovations delight us in striking color combinations of red Chinese maple, gold, orange and plum.

The sweeping cornucopia profusions of ripe berries and exotic blooms issue a statement, “beauty at any cost”.

Candle Lighting Tips

- For perfect burning, trim the candle's wick to just the right length - about 1/4 inch each time before you light it. Be sure to remove any wick debris in the candle before lighting, too.
- Don't touch, lift or move a burning candle; wait until the wax has cooled and hardened before you touch the candle itself.
- Candles should be kept away from extreme heat or cold, since candle wax can be temperature sensitive. Don't leave them in direct sunlight or other bright light for prolonged periods (the colors might fade).

Kids Say The Darndest Things

Here's an anecdote to remind you it's futile to live life like it's a race. It seems like yesterday that I took my son, now 17, to nursery school. One day as he strolled along the path to his school I yelled, “Come on honey, hurry up!” He looked up at me and asked, “Why are we rushing so fast?” And I said, “Because we're late!” He stopped and said, “If we go fast, will we be on time?”

Decorating The Garden For Fall

An old birdbath holds an offering of decayed beauty-huge mushrooms scavenged from the wilder corners of the garden, dried hydrangea heads and a swirl of twining vine stems. Pots of deep red mums and a pumpkin add saturated color.

A birdcage home to two craft shop crows entwined with bittersweet, makes a new focal point in a colorful shrub border and lends a touch of dark magic

Shades of Light

It's a lamp. It's a candle. No matter how you look at it, Shades of Light has changed the landscape of home decor and candle-light.

It looks like a lamp, but functions like a candle. Each unique lamp shade is crafted entirely of paraffin wax and is lightly scented with the warmth of vanilla.

The shades are designed to burn straight down the center. Maintaining the shape throughout the entire burn, adding to the appeal is the variety of classic stands and interchangeable shades.

Advantages To Fall Planting

by Geoff Fleenor

You can plant anytime the ground isn't frozen and with normal care, your plants will be fine. The advantage to fall is cooler weather, pleasant for working outside, fall rains and a jump start for your plants next spring.

Just keep plants well watered until the ground freezes and they'll be fine over the winter. Most plants grow roots during fall and in the early spring before you would probably be planting, giving them a head start the following year. Remember, don't plant too deep and mulch. Fertilize the following spring.

ASK IRIS!

Dear Iris:

I overheard two gardeners talking about "planting high" and I just couldn't believe it. What is the world coming to? Holly

Dear Holly:

No fear, they were referring to planting the crown of a plant (the place where roots begin) above the surrounding soil level. By doing this, it allows water to better drain away from the crown of perennial plants, avoiding rot, and trees and shrubs to spread their roots more naturally, just under the soil and preventing suffocation or poor development of these plants. It also allows for the buildup of some decaying matter from organic mulches which builds topsoil at the proper level for the plants.

Dear Iris:

I want to be more "natural" in my landscape. What should I do? Lily

Dear Lily:

I'm assuming tall, solid fences will not be in order here and you're wanting a landscape that is less formal, reflecting more of our natural surroundings. Avoid plants like Crimson King (red leaved) Maples, or Golden Locust and use native red maples (turns red in the fall), viburnums, deciduous hollies, ornamental grasses and perennials like coneflowers, false sunflower and blazing stars.

Lightly de-tangle the root ball, plant and water thoroughly. Remember to mulch and deadhead. Do not cut down your mum until spring. To keep your mum looking beautiful use Rooting and Blooming Fertilizer and keep it watered!

Kitchen Tips

Cutting Board Care.

Always sterilize cutting boards after cutting raw or cooked meat or fish. For wood, soak 2 minutes in solution of 3 Tbsp. bleach per 1 gallon of water. Rinse and air dry.

What's The Difference?

- Espresso: Italian strong coffee, sipped.
- Latte: shot of Espresso with plenty of hot milk, not frothed.
- Cappuccino: traditional coffee and milk mixed 50/50, topped by milk and a dusting of cinnamon.

Pretty Is As Pretty Does.

Add a little milk to the cooking water for cauliflower to keep its creamy white color.

You've Had It How Long?

You can keep Baking Powder or Baking Soda up to 18 months.

Save The Vitamins.

Since most US grown rice is enriched with a high vitamin coating, rinsing rice before cooking will wash away all the nutrients.

The Original Non-Stick.

Cast iron cookware is seasoned (or reseasoned after long use) by washing, drying, rubbing with vegetable oil and baking at 350 degrees for 1 hour.
